A brand people can recognize.

The identity and templates are ready for everyday digital and document design work. The strongest distinction comes from HEART's real learning model, original illustrated logo, and actual school moments.

A consistent signature. Ground is green, Engage is blush, and Grow is sunshine. The guide, school presentation, family materials and repeated details now agree.

A softer, deliberate hierarchy. Lora Medium carries brand statements; Nunito Sans handles practical information. Education and Recreation have equal emphasis, with a smaller italic Through.

More specific stories. Social templates now invite people to see learning in action and name what a student chose, tried or contributed. The guide shows real applications, not just abstract color cards.

A usable handoff. A complete palette board, consistent color names, cleaner signature strips, better Story spacing, and a final guide page explain how to use the system.
